Brief Introduction:

BPC-157 is a peptide chain consisting of 15 amino acids. It is considered synthetic because this particular sequence does not exist in nature. It is derived from a protective protein found in the stomach.

Based on test results on animal subjects, this peptide will be best for human beings who've experienced digestive difficulties of a chronic or sporadic nature. In addition, it may help people to recover from muscle injuries and to heal from wounds.

Scientific studies based on animal test subjects have shown that BPC-157 has very broad spectrum of biological activity and is responsible for the regulation and control of various functions in digestive tract, central nerve system, immune and cardiovascular system. It has been also found very strong organo-protective activity. Compound passed the phasis of pharmacological/preclinical research.

1. BPC-157 has a variety of protective effects in the organs
2. BPC-157 human trials demonstrate healing and prevention of stomach ulcers
3. BPC-157 no adverse reactions have been seen in human trials.

Dosage:

This depends on your body weight. All of the research carried out so far has used rodent studies, the rats and mice are usually injected with an effective dosage thought to be around 10 µg (mcg) per KG, in humans this is thought to be around the equivalent loading of 1.6 µg per KG in humans, so if you are:

60 KG (132 lb.) then your ideal daily BPC-157 oral dose would be 96 µg (mcg)
 70 KG (154 lb.) => 112 µg
 80 KG (176 lb.) => 128 µg
 90 KG (198 lb.) => 144 µg

Function:

1. Promote muscle and ligament regeneration, promote wound healing, improve tendon stiffness and elasticity
2. Improve the blood circulation of the stomach, for bodybuilders to increase muscle.
